

Rob Gell to speak at WIDCORP's 4th research forum

WIDCORP forums provide an opportunity for researchers, community members, government agencies and resource managers to share knowledge and discuss a wide range of issues about water and regional sustainability. The theme of this our 4th forum is Regional Futures, which has emerged as a key research focus of the University of Ballarat. This is a half day forum followed by a half day workshop. In the morning Rob Gell will share his vision for sustainable regional futures followed by young leaders and researchers who will talk about their visions for the Wimmera Mallee region. This forum will provide an opportunity to learn and share ideas about ways forward for the region. It will also provide opportunities for researchers to share their research and listen to the research needs of the region. The workshop in the afternoon will focus on developing research projects to better understand the 'Value of Water' in the Wimmera Mallee. The workshop will involve key researchers, decision makers and interested community members.
